

"I LOVE NATURE"

Photostory

---

Stiene De Bolle en Hannes Coutigny

Young Reporters for the Environment

Good Planet

Authors

Stiene De Bolle	Hannes Coutigny
03/04/2001	09/02/2001
Mimosalaan 10 8500 Kortrijk	't Appelgoedje 18 8970 Poperinge
0499 30 80 40	0492 95 85 72
stiene.debolle@gmail.com	hannes.coutigny@student.vives.be

Beschrijving

"But daddy, if the animals here eat the rubbish and then we eat the animals, then we are actually eating rubbish too, aren't we?" said J., 10.

The Berber town of Arbaa Sahel in Morocco is located in the poor and drought-stricken mountainous Anti-Atlas region. After the construction of the cultural centre, local and Belgian organisations want to join forces to deal with the huge problem of waste. This beautiful piece of nature is marred by massive amounts of garbage, individual dumping sites and polluted dried-up riverbeds. Besides raising awareness among the population, we want to set up a central waste collection point where waste is sorted.

We visited the collective garbage dump site and are now taking action with the local population.

Foto 1: If this is heaven on earth, then I hope no man created heaven.

Foto 2: Mi casa es su casa?

Foto 3: "I love nature."

Foto 4: Even without watering, it continues to grow.